

County employment picture for spring improved

By JACK SCHICHT
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The unemployment rate in Pettis County paralleled the national trend last month, dropping substantially from the rate of February, spokesmen at the State Employment Security office in Sedalia noted Monday.

Although no percentage figures were available, Sylvan Woolery, a supervisor in the office, pointed out that the approximate number of Pettis County residents receiving weekly unemployment compensation checks dropped from 700 in February to 585 in March.

Woolery said the drop in the unemployment rate is basically due to the start of construction activity in the area last month. However, he also pointed out that the continuing stability of local industry also is a factor.

By using the number of unemployment compensation claimants as a guideline, Pettis County's employment picture for the coming spring looks better than it did last year at this time.

Last year, for instance, the number of unemployment compensation claimants rose from 685 in February to 760 in March, after the February unemployment figure dropped from 825 in January.

This year, the unemployment rate has showed a steady decline, from 950 weekly claimants in January to the approximate 585 at present.

Each week these 585 persons must file an unemployment compensation claim with the office here, and many of these people are among the 1,000 job applicants who have their cards on file at the office.

According to William Giles, director of the employment office here, each claimant whose application is approved receives an average of $55 in unemployment compensation a week. The claimant can receive up to $67 a week in unemployment compensation, and the payments can continue for as long as six months.

In the fiscal year ending last June 30, the state paid out $1.25 million in unemployment benefits to residents of Pettis, Johnson and Morgan Counties, all of whom are served by the Sedalia office. More than $900,000 of this amount went to Pettis County residents.

Contrast these facts and figures with the fact that at least two Sedalia industries — Rival Manufacturing Co. and the Paul Jensen Co. — each have openings for about 15 production workers. And until the Jensen Co. recently hired about 15 additional employees, the company had a shortage of 25 to 30 workers this past year, company president Paul Jensen said.

This seemingly contradictory situation between job seekers and job openings isn't all that contradictory, spokesmen for both labor and the unemployment office say.

Giles said that only about 200 of the 1,000 job applicants are looking for industry-related jobs.

"When a job applicant comes into the office," Giles said, "we classify him into one of 10 job categories. Almost one-fourth of the people are looking for clerical or sales jobs, and only about 200 are looking for machine trades or bench work jobs."

But what about these 200 persons? Aren't they more than enough to fill job openings in local factories?

"A lot of them just don't like the type of work," said Giles, explaining one of the reasons why there may be job openings at some local factories. "And then again, a good many of them don't particularly care to or can't work second or third shifts."

On the other hand, Giles said, many of these people don't meet the needs of the employer.

Woolery pointed out that under the present guidelines a person may refuse to accept a job offer and still receive weekly unemployment compensation checks. However, the person's unemployment relief also can be cut off if he refuses a job offer, he added.

Woolery said that in making such a determination, the Employment Security office must take into consideration the amount of wages, the kind of work it is, the work hours and the length of employment.

"The determinations are made on individual cases," he said. "A lot of factors are involved."

Bill Hall, manager of community relations for Rival, explained part of the reason for the lack of workers at factories now as "spring fever."

"It occurs everywhere about this time," Hall said. "A lot of people are just nomadic, and they find it hard to settle down."

Hall, formerly director of economic development for Sedalia, agreed with Giles that many of the persons who fill out "industrial" job applications at the employment office are not suitable for industry work.

Others, he said, are rejected because of a previous bad work record at the company. And many, he conceded, "simply don't get out and pound the pavements. They expect a job to come knocking at their door."

Jensen, whose company manufactures electrical motors, said 98 per cent of his entire production staff is female.

He blames his manpower shortage partly on the lack of day care facilities in Sedalia.

One observer blamed the personnel shortage on low wages.

Nixon signs minimum wage bill, despite 'reservations'

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon today signed a bill that will bring the minimum wage to $2.30 an hour for millions of American workers by Jan. 1, 1978.

Nixon signed the measure at his desk in the Oval Office, with Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan seated alongside.

In a White House statement, Nixon said, "Although I have some reservations about portions of this legislation, its basic purpose — to increase the minimum wage for working men and women of this country — deserves the support of all Americans."

The new law expands minimum wage coverage to an additional seven million workers. Some 49.4 million workers already were covered by minimum wage legislation.

Nixon vetoed a similar minimum wage bill last year.

Nixon objected to the 1973 minimum wage bill as being inflationary and because it did not include a youth differential permitting a lower rate for teenagers.

The 1974 bill, approved by Congress last month, contains only minor changes from the one Nixon vetoed.

It does not contain a youth differential but it does liberalize the present law slightly on employment of students, permitting them to work part-time not more than 20 hours a week — at 85 per cent of the regular wage floor.

The latest bill would bring domestics under the wage and hour law for the first time and repeals overtime pay exemptions now in effect in several industries.

It also tightens present law on child labor on farms and extends the scope of the law aimed at discrimination against elderly persons.

For 36 million workers covered under the 1966 minimum wage law, the schedule calls for an increase to $2 by May 1, $2.10 by Jan. 1, 1975, and $2.30 by Jan. 1, 1976.

IRS may still file fraud charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The head of the Internal Revenue Service has indicated that the IRS still may be investigating whether the preparation of President Nixon's tax returns for recent years involved fraud.

IRS Commissioner Donald C. Alexander confirmed Sunday a White House statement that no basis had been found for bringing such a charge against Nixon personally.

But when asked if charges might be leveled against those who helped prepare the tax returns, Alexander responded during a televised interview: "I can't comment on what action the IRS and others may be or may not be taking with respect to others."

The White House announced last week that President Nixon would pay the full IRS-stipulated total of $432,787.13 in unpaid taxes, plus interest, for the years 1969-72.

In Los Angeles, Nixon's tax lawyer Arthur Blech said that the President would be entitled to a deduction of about $125,000 for the year in which he pays the 1969 taxes. Blech said Nixon is legally unobligated to pay the money because the statute of limitations has run out for that tax year. When paid, it could be considered a charitable contribution.

Alexander, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," said it is possible but "I think it's quite unlikely" that the President may not have to pay any income tax for 1974 because of various deductions, including half of the some $32,000 in interest due on his back taxes payment.

Alexander was questioned about reports the White House had been sent information on particular tax returns. He confirmed that "certain sensitive case reports... were apparently forwarded to the White House."

But he said "there was no continuing pattern" and added that he has not sent out any such reports since becoming IRS chief.

Concerning a deduction in Nixon's 1974 income tax, Blech noted that the gift to the government of money owed for 1969 would be deductible up to 50 per cent of Nixon's adjusted gross income.

"The man is entitled to the deduction," Blech said. "Whether he will elect to use it is another question. He may decide it's not wise to have a year where he doesn't pay any income tax."

Blech said the IRS is allowing Nixon an extension on filing his 1973 tax return because the return must be reworked following the IRS ruling on the back taxes.

Alexander was questioned about the $100,000 Hughes contribution following published reports indicating former Nixon attorney Herbert G. Kalmbach had testified privately that C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo told him in confidence Rebozo had passed on portions of the money to the Nixon brothers and Miss Rose Mary Woods.

repeat of the Watergate hearings of last summer.

Earlier, Weicker said detective Anthony T. Ulasewicz probed the private lives of more than a dozen senators and other political figures in 50 separate investigations during Nixon's first term.

In today's session Weicker quoted from the transcript of an executive session interview of former White House law enforcement official John Caulfield. Weicker said some Nixon administration officials were so concerned about the alleged Democratic bias of the Brookings Institute, a Washington think tank, that they seriously "implied" a fire should be started as a diversion to seize some of the institute's papers.

According to the transcript, the suggestion was made to Caulfield by former White House special counsel Charles W. Colson.

"It was an asinine idea," Weicker quoted Caulfield as saying.

Reading from a sheaf of memos, some of them on White House stationery and bearing dates of the summer and fall of 1971, Weicker said administration officials moved to cause IRS audits of the tax returns of a film-maker who had produced a movie highly critical of the President.

The memos, between Caulfield and Dean, identified the film as "Millhouse: A White Comedy," produced by Emile de Antonio. And the memos advised tax audits if the production became publicly identified with Lawrence F. O'Brien, then chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Phelps limited to breaking tie votes

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court ruled today that Lt. Gov. William C. Phelps must obey all rules of the Senate while he is acting as presiding officer.

The high court upheld two Senate rules as constitutional and said it would not delineate the lieutenant governor's powers as had been requested. The rules involved assigning bills to committee and ruling on points of order.

These jobs are up to whoever the Senate decides shall conduct them, the decision held.

Last Nov. 30, the Supreme Court held that Phelps has the constitutional right to preside over the Senate.

At present, the Senate president pro tem, Sen. William Cason, D-Clinton, rules on points of order and refers bills to committee. The court held this to be constitutional.

In deciding not to rule on other duties of the lieutenant governor, the decision said the court will not reach out and undertake to decide constitutional questions not at issue in the court case.

The unanimous decision means that all Phelps can do is preside over the Senate and break tie votes.

Phelps was ordered removed from the Senate last year when he refused to give up the chair to Cason on the last day of the session. The court ruled that Phelps could not be removed as presiding officer.

In the most serious flareup of the controversy this session, the Senate admonished Phelps, by a vote, when they ordered him to recognize a particular senator.

Phelps, as presiding officer, had recognized four other senators instead of calling on Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve, Coeur, who had introduced a proposed constitutional amendment to remove the lieutenant governor's powers in the Senate.

The Senate rules give the discretion to call on senators to the presiding officer, but they must be recognized in the order in which they stand up. This issue was not considered in the Supreme Court decision.

Hearsts go to Mexico

HILLSBOROUGH, Calif. (AP) — Saying he wants "to get it together," Randolph A. Hearst has slipped quietly away to Mexico where he will consider what to do next to win freedom for his kidnapped daughter.

"He doesn't really want to be in this house and he doesn't know what to do, so he is going somewhere where he can think about it a little more," said nephew William Randolph Hearst III.

Meanwhile, American Indian Movement leader Dennis Banks said he has agreed to try contacting the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army to arrange a reunion for the Hearsts with their daughter Patricia.

"(Randolph Hearst) asked me if I would begin a national appeal to the SLA with hopes of arranging a meeting between AIM, Patty and the Hearsts," Banks said in a telephone interview from St. Paul, Minn.

"The idea was to see if she could be given a three-day pass, a 24-hour pass or a week pass so she could spend some time with the family. After that she would be free to return to the SLA," he said.

Hearst, his wife, Catherine, and two of their five daughters, Virginia Bosworth, 24, and Anne Hearst, 18, departed before dawn Sunday and flew from San Francisco to La Paz, a fishing resort on the tip of Baja California, said the pilot of the jet chartered by the Hearsts.

The Hearst nephew said they would be gone four days but would return immediately pending any new developments in the case.

"Randy said to me he's gone to regroup and kind of get it together and try to find out where he can go from here," the nephew said.

A family friend insisted the Hearsts were not headed for a rendezvous with the terrorist Symbionese Liberation Army, which claimed responsibility for dragging 20-year-old Patricia Hearst screaming from her apartment 63 days ago.

In a taped message broadcast last Wednesday, Miss Hearst renounced her family and said she was joining her SLA captors as an armed comrade. The previous day, the SLA had said it would be announcing the time and place of her release within 72 hours.

In an interview Saturday, Hearst said he believed his daughter was brainwashed by her kidnapers, whom he labeled "cruel people."

There was no prior announcement of the Hearsts' trip and reporters learned of the departure only after the flight was under way.

"I just dropped them there (at La Paz) and I think that as far as Mr. and Mrs. Hearst are concerned, they were not going to stay in La Paz but go somewhere else," pilot David Miller said after flying to Acapulco, Mexico.

A ferry boat makes regular trips across the Gulf of California from La Paz to Mazatlan, Mexico, where the Hearst family reportedly owns property. The Hearsts also reportedly own property near Monterey in northern Mexico. Asked whether the Hearsts were headed for a meeting with the SLA or Patricia, Ira Walsh, the family friend who drove the Hearsts to the airport, said: "I know there's nothing (to that possibility)."

Military, civilians differ over Mideast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel has asked for more U.S. Shrike air-to-ground missiles for use against Syrian air defenses, Pentagon sources report.

This request is viewed by some military analysts as underscoring the seriousness of the situation developing along the Golan Heights front.

But civilian officials indicate they doubt Israel will escalate the present relatively low level of shooting unless the Syrians launch a major attack.

These officials tend to view limited military action by Damascus as an effort to improve Syria's position for diplomatic bargaining to come. But they do not rule out the possibility of a major new Syrian offensive.

They note that the Syrians now lack the advantage of surprise that enabled their tank forces to drive back the outnumbered Israelis at the start of the October war.

When the Syrians struck last fall, the Israeli air force took severe losses from Soviet-made missiles and guns until it was able to neutralize those batteries with the help of Shrikes and other air-to-ground missiles struck from the United States.

The high explosive Shrike is designed to knock out the electronic "eyes" guiding anti-aircraft weapons by homing in on their radar beams.

The Pentagon said last week that "we are now close to the $1.5-billion figure in equipment approved for supply" to Israel, with about two-thirds of it already delivered.

In authorizing $2.2 billion in military aid for Israel late last year, Congress said that President Nixon could go beyond $1.5 billion only if he makes a special determination that it is in the U.S. national interest to do so.

Meanwhile, defense officials say he newly announced agreement with Saudi Arabia calling for close economic and other cooperation will not be at the expense of the U.S. relationship with Israel.

DEATH NOTICES

Jesse L. Goode

Jesse Leist Goode, 61, 1321 South Ohio, died at 5:30 p.m. Sunday at the Veterans Hospital, Columbia.

He was born in Pettis County on August 22, 1912, son of the late Minor J. and Grace Baughman Goode. He married Virginia Dugan in June, 1948, at Camdenton and she survives of the home.

Mr. Goode had been a resident of Sedalia since 1929 and was an iron worker until his health failed. He was also on the Sedalia police department for five years. Mr. Goode was a Veteran of World War II, serving in the South Pacific where he was awarded the purple heart, five battle stars and combat infantryman badge. He received a field commission to Lieutenant under General Kruger.

Other survivors include one daughter, Mrs. Tom (Vida) Logan, 1008 East 16th, three sisters, Mrs. Noma Croft, Georgetown; Mrs. Ben (Ina) Borne, Tulsa, Okla.; Mrs. Marvin (Reta) Michalkowsky, Florence; and one grandson.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Heckart-Gillespie Funeral Home with Rev. Denis Craft, pastor of the First Methodist Church, officiating.

Pallbearers will be Lloyd Goode, Richard Griffin, Tom Logan, Herbert Mittelhauser, Kenneth Schilb and Lloyd Tieman.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery. The American Legion Post 16 will have Military Honors at the graveside.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

William A. Wall

OTTERVILLE — William A. Wall, 85, died at 3 p.m. Sunday at Bothwell Hospital, Sedalia.

He was born Feb. 29, 1889, in Cooper County near Syracuse, son of John H. and Susan Clift Wall. He married Ethel Speaker May 12, 1915, and she preceded him in death July 25, 1971.

He was a member of the Otterville Baptist Church, George Clark Harlan American Legion Post No. 84, and was a veteran of World War I. He worked for 18 years at the Sedalia Packing House and for several years at the Wayne Richardson Store here.

He is survived by one sister, Mrs. Ruth Snyder, Otterville; and several nieces and nephews.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Otterville Baptist Church with the Rev. Warren Haley and the Rev. Melton Hodge officiating.

Burial will be in the IOOF Cemetery. The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday at the Painter-Woodard Funeral Home, Otterville.

Donald S. Lamm Sr.

Funeral services for Donald S. Lamm Sr., 84, 1303 South Osage, a prominent retired Sedalia attorney, who died at 6 p.m. Saturday at his home, will be held at 3 p.m. Tuesday at the McLaughlin Funeral Chapel with the Rev. Dr. Robert Kessler of the Sedalia Community Church officiating.

Mr. Lamm was admitted to the Missouri Bar in 1913. He volunteered and served as a captain in the 340th Field Artillery from 1917 to 1919 with the A.E.F. in France. Following World War I he attended Cambridge University in England. Upon his return to Sedalia he became active in the American Legion and the Salvation Army. He was the only remaining charter member of the Sedalia Rotary Club.

Although primarily a business lawyer, Mr. Lamm participated in the administration of the May H. Ilgenfritz Trust and the John H. Bothwell Hospital Trust. In the former, he served many years as chairman of a committee to select students for aid from the Ilgenfritz fund for higher education. Lamm served one year as moderator of the Congregational Church, was one of the organizers of the Community Hotel (Bothwell Hotel) Company, and was referee in bankruptcy for 13 counties in Central Missouri from 1923 to 1947.

He was a colonel on the governor's staff from 1941 to 1945, was a member of the Missouri State Council of Defense, set up during World War II, serving from 1943 to 1946; Mr. Lamm was president of the Knife and Fork Club from 1952 to 1953, and was a member of the Phi Delta Theta social and Phi Delta Phi legal fraternities.

Mr. Lamm is survived by his wife, Mildred, of the home; a daughter, Mrs. Jacques Dunham, New York City; a son, Donald S. Lamm Jr., 1620 South Beacon; and a brother, R. Foster Lamm, Banning, Calif.; and four grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Donald Barnes, Lawrence Barnett, Job Harned, Henry Lamm, Lee Peabody Sr., and Frank Wagner. Honorary pallbearers are Earl Crawford, Robert Fritz, Arthur Hoffman, Jack Kniest, William Lamm, Kenneth Love Sr., Ed McLaughlin, and Dr. A. L. Walter.

Burial will be in Crown Hill Cemetery.

The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Monday at the funeral chapel.

Theft believed committed by 'different crew'

Police Chief William Miller said Monday that "it seemed to be a different crew" that burglarized the office of Dr. A. L. Lowe, 621 West 16th, sometime Friday night, making off with a large number of disposable syringes, local anesthetics, injectable vitamins and allergy drugs.

Miller was referring to an earlier break-in of Dr. Lowe's office several weeks ago in which a quantity of drugs had been taken. "It looks like a different crew on this one," said Miller. "The last time whoever it was knew exactly what they were looking for — they were very selective. This time they just seemed to grab whatever they could get their hands on."

Elaborating, Miller said that the burglars during the first break-in hadn't appeared to be interested in anything that wasn't a controlled substance, such as narcotic cough suppressants and amphetamines, but the thieves in the latest break-in "were just grabbing."

About 100 disposable syringes were taken in this theft, according to Miller, but added that it was unknown whether or not the break-in might be connected with another one in late January in which 50-75 small syringes were taken from the Sedalia Veterinary Center, Green Ridge Road. Nothing else was apparently taken in that break-in, although the safe in the building had been opened.

Initially it had been reported that the thieves had jimmied the double lock on the back door of Lowe's office to gain access but a police report on the incident stated that the door had been forced or kicked open.

In other police news, James L. Newland 718 North Prospect, told police that $182 worth of tools and equipment were taken from his garage sometime after dark Saturday.

Entry into the garage was obtained by the use of a small pry bar to force the door lock.

B. A. Fischer

Fischer seeks nomination for presiding judge

Former presiding judge B. A. "Bunny" Fischer, 1639 Country Club, Monday filed for the Democratic nomination for presiding judge of the Pettis County Court.

Fischer, 65, will be opposed in the August primary election by E. L. Birdsong, the present Eastern District judge. Fischer was defeated in the November, 1972, general election by Republican Harry Walch to fill a two-year unexpired term as presiding judge. Walch has not yet decided whether to run for re-election. No other Republicans have filed.

Former Gov. Warren Hearnes appointed Fischer to the post of presiding judge on Feb. 15, 1972, to fill a portion of the unexpired term of James Green, a Republican, who died in office.

Fischer formerly was an employee of the Missouri Pacific Railroad and had served for eight years as a member, secretary and president of the Sedalia Police Personnel Board.

French race for president is growing

PARIS (AP) — Finance Minister Valéry Giscard d'Estaing today officially announced his candidacy in the May 5 presidential election.

He is the third candidate to enter the race from the coalition that has governed France since Gen. Charles de Gaulle became president in 1958. Former Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas and Edgar Faure — twice a premier in the 1950's and now president of the National Assembly — previously said they would run.

The announcement by Giscard d'Estaing that he was entering the race had been expected. He consistently has been a front runner in polls looking for political leaders with bright futures.

Socialist party chief Francois Mitterrand was scheduled to announce his candidacy later in the day, and there was speculation that he would gain the support of the Communist party, the Communist-aligned General Confederation of Labor and the French Democratic Labor Confederation.

If Chaban-Delmas, Faure and Giscard d'Estaing all remain in the race, splintering the strength of the government forces, Mitterrand seems sure to be the first-round leader in the elections. If no candidate gets a majority in the May 5 balloting, a runoff vote among the top men will be held May 19.

Nixon expected to name Simon to post

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon is expected to announce Tuesday his nomination of energy chief William E. Simon as the new secretary of the treasury. Treasury Department sources said today.

The appointment of the 46-year-old Simon has been expected since incumbent Secretary George P. Shultz announced on March 14 he was resigning about May 1.

Simon would be the fourth treasury secretary since Nixon became President. The others were David M. Kennedy, January 1969 to February 1971; John B. Connally, February 1971 to June 1972, and Shultz, from June of 1972.

County employment

Jensen said his starting production employees begin at $1.70 an hour, with subsequent raises to $2.12 an hour. Hall declined to say what the beginning salary for a production worker was at Rival, but sources indicated that it was below $2 an hour.

Spokesmen for the Permaneer Corp. and the Swift and Co. Dairy and Poultry Plant both said that they are not experiencing any labor shortages at the present time.

Permaneer's beginning salary is $2.70 and hour and Swift's is $2.25, with a 25-cent raise due after 60 days' employment.

Hall conceded that the low wage rate could eliminate the family breadwinners. However, he noted that the company's plants, in a number of cases, have several family members working at the same plant.

Jensen blamed his problems in obtaining an adequate work force in part on the availability of unemployment compensation. "It's too easy to get on unemployment," Jensen asserted. "The way the whole (state) unemployment office is set up, their jobs depend on how many people are on unemployment compensation. The more on the unemployment rolls, the more secure their jobs."

Jense said as long as the unemployment compensation system remains as it is, some persons will continue to work only until they qualify for unemployment insurance, and then try to qualify for state compensation.

Khadafy said still in control

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Sources in Libya say Col. Moammar Khadafy is still the country's strongman and has only given up ceremonial duties.

Diplomatic and government sources Sunday contradicted reports circulating elsewhere in the Middle East that the controversial Khadafy had been stripped of power in the oil-rich state.

Libyans were told Sunday that Khadafy had handed over some of his duties to Premier Abdel Salam Jalloud, confirming reports first circulated Saturday. But informed sources said the move would not reduce Khadafy's power as the country's leader.

"Khadafy is still our president, he's still our leader," a spokesman for the government news agency said.

A Western diplomat in Tripoli said: "It doesn't look like Khadafy's lost any power except handing over some functions, such as meeting and greeting dignitaries, to Jalloud."

Khadafy, who has ruled Libya since seizing power in a coup four years ago, is known to be disdainful of the protocol niceties normally required of heads of state.

He was reported in Tripoli and the capital was calm over the weekend, with no signs of unusual activity.

Doubts about Khadafy's status were raised after Egypt's official Middle East News Agency on Saturday made public a decree issued by the ruling Revolutionary Command Council. It said Khadafy "is to devote himself to ideological and intellectual work and to the popular authorization without prejudice to his functions as the commander-in-chief of the armed forces."

"According to the decree, the prime minister, Maj. Jalloud, shall be in charge of the political, administrative and routine affairs and all protocol activities, including receiving heads of state at airports and seaports and receiving ambassadors."

"Meanwhile the decree shall not affect the authorities and duties of the Revolutionary Command Council."

Usually well informed newspapers in the Middle East said Khadafy, who has threatened to resign a number of times when displeased, had been pushed aside. The Beirut An Nahar newspaper said there had been "a coup against Khadafy, with his consent." It said the majority of the Revolutionary Command Council was disturbed "by Khadafy's whimsical policies that created negative results on the Arab and international scene."

It cited as an example Khadafy's abortive attempt to merge Libya with Tunisia.

Mitchell-Stans trial entering eighth week

NEW YORK (AP) — The criminal conspiracy trial of former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell and ex-Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans enters its eighth week today.

The two former cabinet members are charged with attempting to block a Securities and Exchange Commission fraud investigation into the international financial empire of Robert L. Vesco in return for Vesco's secret $200,000 contribution to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

The trial recessed Friday for the weekend after hearing testimony from Edward C. Nixon, the President's 43-year-old brother.

Nixon was the first witness for the defense.

He testified that, serving as an intermediary between Vesco and Stans, he made a cash-only request to Vesco.

The government had attempted to prove through its witnesses that it was Stans who demanded the contribution be in cash in order to keep it secret.

Nixon took the stand Friday after United States District Court Judge Lee P. Gagliardi dismissed for lack of evidence one count of a 16-count indictment against Mitchell and Stans charging conspiracy, perjury and obstruction of justice.

The dropping of the one count for obstruction of justice reduced the maximum possible sentence upon conviction from 50 to 45 years against each of the former cabinet members.

Couples to submit rezoning request for second time

Although their initial rezoning request was rejected by the City Council some two months ago, two Sedalia couples are again seeking to have property located on the south side of West Ninth, between Limit and Warren, rezoned to C-1 (local business district).

This time, however, Mr. and Mrs. Wilmont Coulter and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Thomas have included three additional lots in their request, according to their attorney James Buckley. These lots, Buckley said, cover the parking lot area formerly used at the Carnival Pizza and Pub restaurant. The establishment burned to the ground in January.

Buckley explained that, although the parking lot had been used in connection with commercial enterprises, it had never been zoned for commercial use. One lot in the area is currently zoned C-O (non retail district) with the remaining nine lots currently zoned R-1 (single family, residential).

The couples will present their rezoning request to the city planning and zoning commission at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Municipal Building council chambers.

Buckley explained that city ordinances do not prohibit parties from seeking another decision when their original request is rejected.

Remarks attributed to Highway Patrol head are questioned

ST. LOUIS (AP) — State Rep. J. B. "Jet" Banks, D-St. Louis, said today he will seek the removal of Col. Sam S. Smith as head of the state's Highway Patrol if remarks attributed to Smith prove prejudicial.

Banks, who is chairman of the House Committee on Employment Security and Fair Employment Practices, said he has scheduled a committee hearing tonight on dismissal of a black recruit from the patrol academy at Rolla.

The recruit, Owen W. Hinkle, 23, was notified March 26 he would not graduate from the academy despite completing 21 weeks of a 22-week training course, Banks said.

Challenged by Banks was the dismissal despite a B average in academy studies and remarks attributed to Smith by the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"The boy didn't try very hard. Along with academics you must have a desire to excel," Smith was quoted by the Post-Dispatch as saying.

"If the information I've been able to get so far is true," Banks said, "then I am going to ask Gov. Christopher S. Bond to replace Smith."

Revenue sharing funds are received

The third in a series of four federal revenue sharing checks in the 1973-74 fiscal year was received Monday by Pettis County Treasurer Virgil Houchens.

The check was for $37,560. This money, along with an anticipated fourth check of the same amount, already has been budgeted by the County Court.

Perky salad

Brussels sprouts spring salad combines colorful vegetables to perk up taste buds.

By AILEEN CLAIRE
Combinations of cold, colorful vegetables make excellent salads. These can be served as a salad course or main dish. As an entree, a Brussels Sprouts Spring Salad makes a happy change from the usual meat, seafood or cheese dishes. Even beginning cooks can impress a boy friend, husband or relatives with a salad of Brussels sprouts, potatoes, carrots, celery and tomatoes done with a tangy marinade.

BRUSSELS SPROUTS SPRING SALAD
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen California Brussels sprouts
Water

Salt
1 1/2 pounds new potatoes, halved
2 cups carrots, cut in julienne strips
2 cups sliced celery
1/2 cup salad oil
1/4 cup wine vinegar
2 tablespoons minced onion
2 teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon sugar
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
Tomato wedges or cherry tomatoes

Cook Brussels sprouts according to package directions and drain. In 1 inch boiling, salted water, cover and cook unpeeled new potatoes 15 minutes. During last 5 minutes of cooking time, add carrots and celery. Continue cooking until vegetables are fork-tender; drain. In 13 x 9-inch baking dish, arrange cooked vegetables. In small bowl, combine salad oil, vinegar, onion, salt, sugar, pepper and mustard until well combined. Pour over cooked vegetables. Cover and refrigerate at least 3 hours or overnight, stirring occasionally. To serve, drain marinade from vegetables. Arrange vegetables in serving dish with tomato wedges. Serve salad with any remaining marinade. Makes 6 servings.

Underarm stains far from myth

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with department and other stores that advertise great bargain sales but take no phone orders. I am 80 and almost blind. Attending such sales is an impossibility but I would like to take advantage of them. I wish they would help us senior citizens and handicapped people who cannot go to the sales by offering a mail order service. We need such bargains. — INA.

DEAR POLLY — and M.R.B. — To extend a too tight waistband I opened up the seams of a half-slip two inches down, finished the edges with the zigzag stitch on my sewing machine and sewed an inch of elastic on to the opened ends of the elastic at each side. The result is a slip comfortable at the waistline. — E.V.B.

DEAR POLLY — I had the same problem as M.R.B. who wants to stretch the elastic in underwear. I solved this by stretching mine over the back of a chair where it was left for several days until it had stretched to fit. To hurry the process moisten the elastic band but be sure to protect the chair's finish if you do this. — DOROTHEA.

DEAR GIRLS — I also used Dorothea's method for stretching a nylon shirt that fit a bit too snugly. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — The new 55 mile-an-hour speed limit is rigidly enforced in our state. I found the 55 mark on my speedometer rather difficult to read so put a very narrow strip of orange "glow in the dark" tape on the glass from top to bottom along the 55 mark. — MRS. S.B.

DEAR POLLY — The rubber cushions covering the tops of my crutches were showing signs of wear but were too good to discard. I slipped those footies we wear when going without stockings over the rubber tops. They have elastic around the edges and are just the right size. I was saved the cost of buying new rubber pads for a while. — EVELYN.

DEAR POLLY — I dropped a pan on my white stove and it knocked off a big patch of enamel. I painted this piece with two coats of aluminum paint with three or four days of drying between each and then applied white touch-up paint, let dry thoroughly and then put on another coat. The results have been most satisfactory. — E.O.H.

Polly's problem
DEAR POLLY — Are shields made to go under the arms of men's suit coats similar to the dress shields women wear in their clothes? My husband uses an anti-perspirant but still his suits have to go to the cleaners far too often because of the underarm problem. How do others handle this problem? — MRS. L.B.

Publisher still goes for facts

By RUTH ANN RAGLAND

HOBBS, N.M. (AP) — When Agnes Kastner Head was 5 years old, she reported in the weekly Dexter, Mo., newspaper that a dead rat had been found in the schoolhouse cistern. The story resulted in a cleaned-out cistern and a lid for it.

Mrs. Head now is 70 years old and she's still reporting "irregular happenings."

"I'm always reporting things that other papers won't report," said Mrs. Head, who has been publishing newspapers in New Mexico for 30 years. "I guess this is bragging, but I work a lot of investigative things. My paper's not a sad weekly. It's pretty perked up."

The publisher of the weekly Hobbs Flare and former publisher of the Lovington Leader was honored here recently at a banquet sponsored by Lea County friends. Her long years of newspapering haven't always resulted in honors, however.

"I was arrested twice for criminal libel," she said. "Once was back in 1946." Mrs. Head, then publisher of the Lovington Leader, was able to get the criminal charge dismissed.

In March 1948 she launched the Hobbs Flare as a daily newspaper and "on the third day I was arrested for criminal libel. This time I was charged with libeling the dead."

Mrs. Head said she represented herself in this case and got the suit dismissed.

Before moving to New Mexico in 1930 she worked as a reporter in Cape Girardeau, Mo., where she was going to Teachers College, now Southeast Missouri University.

It was during the oil boom and it was pretty rough."

She and her husband, J. C. Head, who was in the construction business, later lived in San Angelo, Tex., where "I didn't get to work on the newspaper because it was during the Depression. But I free-lanced at five cents an inch."

By the time the Heads, who have been married 50 years, moved to Hobbs in 1930 they had two children and later added another. They have nine grandchildren.

Americans shift budget to buy meat

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Meat on the table — that is what most people still demand despite steadily rising costs.

There is no doubt that we will eat more lentils, dry beans and soy products to keep down costs and to get essential protein. But to most people there is a limit to these foods in their diet. Even with the cruel financial pressure of the cost of steaks and roasts most people will not adjust to going without them constantly. They will give up something else instead.

"Meat, like gasoline for our car, is absolutely essential to our daily way of life. For most peoples' way of life. I'd rather give up shoes than think of giving up steak. We need physician stamina just as we need to drive to work. Take these things away and what have you got?" asks Ruth Lundgren, a widow with two sons in college who is president of her own food promotion company.

"Certainly we try to cut down on food waste. We try to cut down on food waste. We now buy 10 pounds of potatoes instead of more costly instant potatoes. We eat fruit for dessert instead of cakes made from mixes. We try to cut out every unnecessary food expenditure. But meat — no. We eat less expensive but good cuts and have meat on our table in face of rising meat costs. My sons need it and so do I," Mrs. Lundgren explains.

"Where does the extra meat money come from? It comes from one less movie a month, from not buying a new blouse for me or a new shirt for the boys. These things we can postpone," she insists.

Another working mother explains why she is still serving meat to her family, despite the sky-rocketing prices.

"The situation is dismal. Meat costs are frightening. Yet we do buy it — less expensive cuts — but meat," reports Anita Fial, a director of home economics.

"Every Sunday I try to cook for the family. Usually I broil meat. But last Sunday, instead of the customary sirloin steak, I used round steak. Not so tender but it tasted good," she says. "And the cost was much less."

"I still buy regular milk but

I've cut out delivery of it. I go to a drive-in store and buy in half-gallons. I cut down on wasting food but not on quality.

WORLD ALMANAC
FACTS

After his trip through the United States in 1831, French author Alexis de Tocqueville said: "Americans of all ages, all conditions and all dispositions constantly form associations. They have... associations of a thousand kinds, religious, moral, serious, futile, restricted, enormous or diminutive. The Americans make associations to give entertainments, to found establishments for education, to send missionaries to the antipodes."

A conservative view

Sulking on right won't win war

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — There is much talk these days, especially among Democratic tacticians, of a Republican debacle in November. It could happen; and it will happen if conservatives let it happen.

Kilpatrick

On paper, at least, plenty of signs point to a Democratic landslide. Political analysts are of one mind in saying that Watergate contributed heavily to the GOP's loss of Gerald Ford's old seat in Michigan and William J. Keating's former seat in Ohio. Even without Watergate, Republican prospects would be poor for gaining seats or even for holding their own in the Senate. In the House, 105 marginal seats are pretty well up for grabs, and the Democrats will grab everything in sight.

As a consequence, Democrats are rolling their eyes and slapping their knees, and talking of a "veto-proof" 94th Congress nine months hence. A gain of 45 seats in the House and nine or 10 in the Senate would reduce Republican representation below the one-third mark. The idea is that Democrats then could muster the two-thirds vote necessary to override any vetoes that President Nixon, or possibly President Ford, might impose.

A lot of this talk is just that: talk. On the matter of vetoes, for example, as in most other matters before the Congress, party allegiance has little meaning. When the Senate voted last month on a motion to override the President's veto of the energy bill, 11 Democrats voted helpfully to sustain. The motion lost 58-40, nine short of the required margin.

It also is possible, the professional analysts notwithstanding, to find explanations for recent Republican losses that have nothing to do with Watergate. The abortion issue, for one thing, figured significantly in the March 5 special election in Ohio.

But conservatives ought to face a melancholy truth: One of the chief reasons for recent losses is that many Republicans have stayed home. Conservatives, like the great Achilles, are sulking in their tents. They are as aggrieved at Nixon as the famous warrior was aggrieved at Agamemnon. Nursing their wounds, they are having no part of the battle.

It is no way to win wars. Conservatives should be urged to shake off the blues, get out of the dumps, and think long and hard about what the Democrats' "veto-proof" Congress would mean.

Such a shift of power would mean, for one thing, that organized labor would have much greater clout in the 94th Congress than it has now in the 93rd. The AFL-CIO threw its weight behind Democrat Thomas A. Luken in Ohio in his successful race. Both the AFL-CIO and the United Mine Workers figured decisively in Pennsylvania's 12th District in February, when Democrat John P. Murtha took the seat formerly held by Republican John P. Saylor.

If labor wins victories, labor will demand spoils. A first order of business in such a "veto-proof" Congress might well be the repeal of Section 14-b of the Taft-Hartley Act, which authorizes states to enact right-to-work laws. Overnight, 19 states could lose this bulwark of individual liberty and industrial strength.

A Democratic landslide would carry other meanings that dispirited conservatives should understand. The old "Southern coalition" would be dissolved. Committees that now are fairly evenly balanced in liberal and conservative seats would fall to liberal dominance.

This doesn't have to happen. Republican candidates, trying to regroup their forces, can woo independent conservatives just as Greek warriors wooed Achilles: "Deprecate the Chief, and save the host!" The GOP, battered and bruised, can yet survive as a potent minority party. All that is required is that its moral and financial supporters stop brooding, put up some first-rate people, and get back in the fight.

Carl Rowan
Detente not an ugly word

WASHINGTON — Many Americans, loudest among them being the conservatives, are saying that it would be an act of statesmanship for President Nixon to avoid arms negotiations with Soviet boss Leonid Brezhnev until Mr. Nixon is free of his Watergate woes.

Rowan

The conservatives express fear that, if the President goes to Moscow when impeachment pressures are at a peak, he just might make dangerous concessions to the Soviets in order to get a highly-publicized agreement which would retrieve some of his support in Congress.

Liberals fear that the President might destroy detente by reverting to a hard anti-Communist line in the hope of solidifying conservative support in the Senate, which he counts on to give him the 34 votes he needs to block conviction and ouster from office.

So the public gets so caught up in speculation on both sides to forego those periodic crises over Berlin with the attendant rattling of nuclear weapons.

Detente has meant an unspoken agreement not to blunder into any more Cuban missile crises. It has meant a modicum of cooperation in providing the U.S. with an escape hatch from a costly war in Indochina and in ensuring that the quarter-century-old conflict in the Middle East did not lead to great-power warfare.

Detente has meant that West Germany and France could deal more freely with the Soviet Union and the countries of Eastern Europe, with Western Europe feeling less under the barrel of the Soviet guns. It has enabled countries like Romania to deal more closely with the United States without stirring Kremlin fears of new Hungarian- and Czech-type uprisings.

But no one ought to be under any illusions that something other than the balance of military terror is now the dominant factor in the maintenance of an air of civility between the United States and Russia. Detente exists not because either side wants it, but because both sides know that it is essential to the survival of the human race.

It is silly to argue, as conservatives insist on doing, that SALT I gave the Russians a numerical advantage in one area of weaponry, or a payload advantage in some other area. As long as the balance of terror continues, as long as neither country develops the "first-strike capability" to so completely destroy the other side that retaliation would be impossible, there isn't likely to be a U.S.-Soviet nuclear war.

The challenge to both sides now is whether they can retain the "balance of terror" without pouring vast billions of dollars and rubles into superfluous weapons systems, all to the detriment of citizens who need bread, shoes, shelter, medicine, education.

The way things are going, even in this era of detente, Russia and the U.S. will pump an incredible $1.5 trillion into the arms race during the decade of the '70s — and perhaps $2 trillion more in the '80s.

Next to a plunge into nuclear war itself, that has got to be the ultimate in insanity. Curbing this waste of the earth's precious resources is too vital to postpone until 1977 when a President who has the confidence of the people presumably will come along.

If Mr. Nixon does not resign and is not forced out of office by Congress, we shall have to bear with summitry and arms negotiations by a President woefully weakened by the misdeeds and malfeasance of his own administration.

We shall simply have to believe that so many people from the State Department, the Pentagon, the Arms Control and Disarmament agency, the Central Intelligence Agency will be involved in the arms talks that no President could make a rashly foolish deal, even if political desperation were to incline him in that direction.

Amtrak patronage

With an assist from the gasoline shortage, Amtrak, the national railroad passenger system, racked up a 28 per cent gain in patronage in January over the same month a year ago. The increase was reflected in all parts of the country as a total of 1,423,000 people took the train.

Amtrak also reports a much improved on-time performance record. Unfortunately, as the United Transportation Union points out in a recent newsletter, in this case all that glitters is not exactly what it appears to be.

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A confidential audit of Vice President Gerald Ford's taxes proves that not all politicians are tax cheats.

Both the Internal Revenue Service and the Joint Congressional Taxation Committee, which investigated President Nixon's taxes, also audited Ford's returns before he was confirmed as vice president.

The President is now stuck with a bill for $476,431 in back taxes after the IRS disallowed several dubious deductions. The vice president, in contrast, merely had to make a few minor adjustments.

The confidential Ford audit, which we have obtained, portrays an inherently honest man who believes he should bear his fair share of the tax burden.

Ford's returns show a total income of $224,364.10 for the first three years of the 1970s. He paid $75,111.44, or about a third of his income, in federal taxes. An additional $6,261.42 was paid to Michigan in state taxes.

Over the same three-year period, President Nixon reported a total income of $794,104.85 yet paid only $5,969.01 in federal taxes. This was less than one per cent of his income. He paid absolutely nothing in state taxes, despite the fact that he maintains residences in both California and Florida.

Tax agents carefully investigated two accounts which Ford used to pay political bills. Declares the confidential audit: "Numerous items were considered to be taxable before receiving Mr. Ford's diary and the fact that we were unable to trace trips to certain locations at certain times of the year... After receiving the diaries... all of the plane travel tickets and cash advances were accepted as legitimate political expenditures."

This compared to the $27,015 that the joint committee claimed President Nixon owes the government for travel expenses he couldn't justify.

The IRS disallowed an $871.44 deduction that Ford took for special

Merry-go-round

Ford's income tax
on the up and up

clothing he had purchased for the 1974 Republican convention. The joint committee had found this to be a legitimate deduction. But the IRS ruled the suits were not "unique or distinctive" in character and, therefore, leveled a "tax deficiency" of $435.77 against Ford.

Although he was advised he could challenge this, he insisted upon giving the government the benefit of any doubt and ordered his accountant to write the IRS a check.

The tax agents also found that Ford had "overlooked" $1,167 which was billed to his political account but actually had been spent for a family trip to their condominium in the Vail, Colo., ski country. Ford thought he had reimbursed the political account, but immediately ordered the necessary payment when he learned otherwise.

"The analysis of the diaries resulted in several questions..." states the audit. "In all cases, the items were found to be correct." The vice president, in other words, kept scrupulously honest tax records.

The famous date of July 25, 1969, which is at the heart of President Nixon's improper deduction for papers donated to the National Archives, also turned up in the investigation of Ford's taxes.

The tax sleuths checked the depreciation that Ford had claimed on his Vail, Colo., condominium. They "felt that an issue should be raised as to the use of 200 per cent depreciation... The cutoff date for use of 200 per cent depreciation for this type of property was 7-25-69."

"The records presented to us," declares the document, "substantiated the fact that the purchase contract was signed and an initial deposit was made on 6-25-69 (which) supported the use of both 200 per cent declining balance depreciation and additional first year depreciation." In short, the transaction was entirely proper.

diary and Mr. Ford's and Mr. Buchen's (a former Ford law partner) assistance, most of the unidentified deposits were explained."

The Ford tax summary shows he contributed a total of $6,342.22 to charity. All the deductions were allowed after careful scrutiny.

A thorough investigation of his checking accounts, particularly checks made out to cash, turned up "nothing significant." The confidential audit mentions that Ford was "surprised himself to know that he can get through a week spending $5 or less because of numerous meetings and lunches paid by others, particularly during the campaign season."

Asked about his bills at the House restaurant for his own lunch, Ford told the investigators that "the cost of his usual lunch of cottage cheese and unsweetened grapefruit juice is very nominal."

White House figures show President Nixon's net worth more than tripled from $307,141 in 1969 to $988,522 in 1973. Over the same time span, Ford's worth jumped from $130,526 to $179,751 — about a 35 per cent increase.

In 1970, Ford had an income of $91,322.11. He forked over $35,121.09 in federal taxes and $1,724.99 in state taxes. Compared with the President, Ford surrendered nearly 50 times more in tax payments on an income of two-thirds less.

A year later, his income totalled $68,114.58. He paid federal taxes of $20,390.53 and state taxes of $2,273.71. Although his income was only about one-fourth the President's, Ford paid about 25 times more taxes.

Again in 1972, he had a $64,927.41 income and paid $19,599.82 federal taxes and $2,262.72 state taxes. He made about a fourth as much as Nixon but paid approximately five times more taxes.

In sum, the vice president's tax returns reveal him as an honest man, who has never connived to seek private gain from his public position. The story is a good tonic for a scandal-weary public.

The Missouri Pork Producers Association report that it has raised its commitment of money for swine research facilities to be built at the University of Missouri-Columbia. This will allow for the funds appropriated by the state Legislature to be released and bids to be let. It is hoped that the bids will be received and construction started sometime in June.

I think it is something that the pork producers of the state can be exceedingly proud of and I am sure the University particularly appreciates your help in organizing and cooperating in their local area funding efforts.

Aeration

As warm spring weather approaches, stored grain always needs to be checked frequently.

Aeration is important with stored grain — even when the moisture content was at the 12 per cent to 13 per cent level when the grain went in the bin. Aeration is accomplished by pulling low amounts of air through the grain mass. Air flow rates of about 1-10th cubic foot per minute per bushel are common. Relatively small fans will deliver this airflow. Fans of 1/2 horsepower or less will usually take care of bins up to 5,000 bushel and 10,000 bushel bins can be serviced with a 3/4 to 1 horsepower fan.

The temperature in a grain bin will lag approximately six weeks behind the average outside temperature. This causes convection currents within the bin. Cold air proceeds down the outside of the bin, across the bottom, becomes warmer and higher in moisture content, rises and causes a high moisture zone in the center of the bin. If serious enough, then spoilage can occur in the center.

By aerating the bin, you equalize the grain temperature within the bin and at the same time, you equalize the grain temperature with the average air temperature.

To equalize moisture content within the bin, grain that has been artificially dried may vary greatly in moisture content. One grain may vary 4 to 6 per cent in moisture content from a grain immediately next to it. Or if the grain is dried in the bin there can be quite a contrast in the moisture content from top to bottom. Aeration will help eliminate this.

Alfalfa weevil

Producers should be checking alfalfa fields once or twice a week for damage from the alfalfa weevil. The cold weather has slowed them down but they are not dead. The tops of the plants were killed with the hard freeze but you may note damage in the top leaves from the alfalfa weevil. It may be necessary to spray once before cutting the first crop and again after the first crop has been hayed.

The 1974 Insect Books will soon be out and may be purchased from the Extension office. Most dealers in the county like to have a copy each year and then they are sure of label clearance.

Frost damage

All fruit trees have been wiped out except apples by the freeze. The apple crop is not completely destroyed but there will be no peaches, plums, apricots or cherries.

The strawberries are okay because they were covered with snow. Most of the flowering trees will not produce flowers this year due to the frost damage.

Look for split bark damage on the trees and be prepared to remove this dead wood later on.

Senate Democratic leadership criticized over campaign reform

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Amid charges from the governor's office and some Republican senators that the Senate Democratic leadership is attempting to weaken a strong campaign reform bill passed by the House, senators are expected to begin debate on the measure this week.

Bond says the Senate leadership is attempting "to pull back from reform" by rewriting the House-passed measure.

The Senate Election Committee passed out the unscathed House bill last Thursday after it became apparent that Republican members would seek a delay to study a substitute bill offered by committee chairman Sen. Franklin Payne, D-St. Louis, but thought to have been drafted by other senators. Payne would not reveal the source of the bill.

Major changes in the substitute distributed by Payne include a hike in the limit under which a campaign contributor can remain anonymous. It provides that the identities of contributors of $200 or less need not be reported. The House version established a $25 limit.

Also changed in the Senate substitute is the definition of a candidate. Under the House measure contributions would have to be reported from the date the first contribution is received or initial expense incurred.

The Senate substitute requires reporting only after an individual has announced candidacy or filed for office.

Under the House bill the commission enforcing provisions of the measure would be appointed by the governor with consent of the Senate from a list submitted by the Supreme Court.

The Senate substitute would create a seven-member commission with two commission members appointed by each political party and two by the Supreme Court. The secretary of state, an elected official, would head the commission.

The Senate substitute doubles the permitted amount to be spent by a candidate in a statewide election to about $600,000. That provision would allow a

Energy situation jolts farm exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world energy situation may cause some countries to reduce purchases of U.S. farm products over the next year, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

But for now, USDA experts said, farm exports in the fiscal year beginning July 1 still are expected to be worth $17 billion to $19 billion. That estimate was announced several months ago and would be second only to the record $20 billion worth of farm commodities sold abroad this fiscal year.

The latest analysis was made in a series of reports published by the department's Foreign Agricultural Service in "Foreign Agriculture," a weekly circular.

"Shortages and sudden price increases for energy that surprised the world last October have jolted agricultural production and trade at almost every level," Reed E. Friend, one USDA specialist wrote.

"Paralleling the situation at the farm level, where fuels and fertilizer are scarce and costly, political and economic repercussions are under way that could significantly alter present

Guardsmen handle 'civil disturbances'

Simulated civil disturbances were dealt with by members of Sedalia's National Guard unit during "Operation Flaming Ram," held Sunday at Covered Bridge Park.

Among the situations, acted out by students in the Central Missouri State University military science department, were controlling a hostile mob, segregating a mob leader, removing a sniper, finding and disarming a live bomb and extinguishing a burning vehicle. Following each activity, a truce was declared and critiques held to discuss problem areas.

Approximately 30 students and 75 guardsmen participated in the exercises, it was reported. Also assisting were representatives of the Pettis County sheriff's office.

Honor roll students are named

Sacred Heart junior and senior high honor roll students for the third quarter were named last week. To qualify, students must earn a 3.0 grade point average. Also named were students who reached the "honor roll with distinction," which requires a grade point average of 3.5.

Named to the regular honor roll in the senior high school were:

Bruce Dooley, Tom Eschbacher, Adolfo Gonzalez, Cindy Klein, Jo Lynn Register, John Schwalie, Cindy Sudduth, Diana Wells, Sheril Wittman, Mark Bell, Kent Dooley, John Ennis, Christine Lehman, Karen Linsendard.

Tina Love, Anita Twiner, Debbie Arens, Kathy Bazin, Mark Eschbacher, Patti Lalla, Nancy Linsendard, Debbie Shull, Doris Wulff, Judy Bopp, Alvin Ennis, Cathy Jobson, Theresa Twenter, Carol Zimmerschied.

Honor roll with distinction, senior high:

Bill Beykirch, Lucy Bopp, Mark Hoskins, Joyce Kinner, Janice Linsendard, Brad Nicholson, Melvin Simon, Robert Simon, Anna Mae Westermier, Clifford Cech, Joe Fangohr, Becky Fischer, Theresa Freund, Bertrude Hambright.

Suzanne Rayl, Joan Simon, Linda Simon, Phil Chancellor, Patricia Fangohr, Rita Westermier, Edith Cutler, Calvin Ennis, Charlene Huhman, Theresa Letourneau, Heather Melchert, Kathy Rouchka, Carol Schuster, Mary Agnes Simon.

Junior high, regular honor roll:

Janice Dooley, Kelly Mucke, Barbara Wolf, Mary Bellmer, Elaine Dooley, Rebecca Keck, David Lamb, Julie Rayl.

Honor roll with distinction: Julie Bazin, Michael Dick, Mary Eschbacher, Dawn Herrick, Bill Luebbert, Marion Makarewicz, Tom Simon, Kim Labus, Georgia McKinzie, William McKinzie, Karen Stone, Barbara Taylor, Betty Wulff, Matt Zoernig.

Another specialist, Spencer F. England, said a rise of 170 per cent in world oil prices since last fall "probably will not cause most developed countries to restrict imports of U.S. farm products this year" to solve balance-of-payments problems.

A life she didn't want to lead

By ISABELLE MIDDENDORF

Bill was late getting home that night and I could see he was excited about something. I'd already fed the children, so I brought our supper into the den on trays, but he was too fidgety to eat. He kept making oblique remarks like, "If the appointment comes through, 'Get away from Connecticut.' 'Bill, what appointment?'"

He looked down at his untouched plate, then blurted out the news. He had been offered the post of U.S. ambassador to Holland.

It wasn't definite, he told me; these things always take time, but it looked as though we'd be moving to the ambassador's residence in The Hague by summertime.

I stared at him. Pride, excitement, a sense of challenge — maybe many women would have felt those things. I did not. I looked about the cozy little room with Ralph's mittens by the fireplace, Amy's spelling book open on the sofa.

This was the life I loved — my family, my home, this good, simple life where you could tramp the woods in an old jacket and a pair of sneakers. I was a homebody — I admitted it — shy, no good with strangers.

It was obvious that Bill had known what my reaction would be, because the appointment must have been brewing for months. Now as I discovered how far along arrangements were, I became more and more distressed.

"It will be a holiday from housekeeping," one friend said, thinking she was encouraging me. "There'll be an upstairs maid and a downstairs maid and a cook and a butler."

"And a governess for the kids, no doubt," I snorted. It sounded terrible.

But the final blow was a pleasant welcoming letter from the chief of mission in Holland giving me the name of my social secretary. Now even my friends were to be managed by somebody else.

I told Bill I could not possibly go.

In the end he persuaded me to come at least for the beginning of his tour, since the children were out of school for the summer. I believe Bill hoped that once I got there, I would change my mind. But the trip had the opposite effect.

The first thing I did when we reached our new residence was to dismiss the governess who had been hired by the embassy as a matter of course. That still left some staff, but it was obvious that they were necessary.

The residence was a large house which a grateful Holland had deeded to the United States after World War II. It had a dining room that could seat 50, chandeliers that would take a week to dust and not one but two kitchens.

Fortunately summer is the slow season in diplomatic circles, and so we gave few parties. But those few were nightmares.

A reception turned out to be a large stiff cocktail party. Still worse were the dinner parties.

Having met a person once among the hundreds at a reception, you were expected to know him. Late in August, in time for the start of the school year, the children and I went home.

It was lonely as the months went by. The children had their friends, and their schoolwork, and I didn't worry about Bill finding plenty to do in Holland. Unlike me, he was eager for new experiences, quick to pick up new ideas and new skills. He wrote that he was learning ceramics and studying the ancient art of working with stained glass.

One day, because I was lonely, I said yes to a friend when she asked me to come to a Bible study in her home. Belle Elmer had been after me to do this for a long time and I'd always pleaded a busy schedule. What little I'd heard of the Bible, read aloud in church, seemed dull, difficult and in no way related to my life as a wife and a mother.

But nothing has been the same since that day. Suddenly phrases I'd heard all my life became realities for me. After three months of learning about Him, I asked Jesus into my life.

In the midst of this rapturous experience, I had a visitor. He was Nate Adams, minister of the Congregational church in nearby Stanwich. As we talked, I told him how awed I was at God's timing; to come into my life just now when I had to be separated from my husband, to give me Jesus to lean on.

Nate raised a lank hand. "If you love God," he began, "wouldn't it be well to do as He says?"

He paged through the Bible on his lap and read, "Wives, be subject to your husbands as to the Lord. As the church is subject to Christ, so let wives also be subject in everything to their husbands."

I swallowed hard. "But — a good wife, that's just what I've always tried to be! I've always put the family's needs first. I brought the children back so they'd have a real home instead of that artificial life."

"You've considered every family need," he said gently, "except the most basic one of all — the divine order. In God's plan, Bill is the head. God's place for you is beside him."

It hurt as truth often hurts. It cut like a sword through all my concepts of what a good wife and mother was. But I knew God was speaking through this man. As soon as he left, I placed a telephone call to tell Bill we would join him when the school year ended.

Through Christ I began to do better. I began to discover His caring for people, caring that let me see behind the title and the protocol.

I began to enjoy the lovely land of Holland, where before I'd been so chagrined at the circumstances. I'd barely glanced out the window. I learned to value diplomatic wives.

As for Bill, he was so glad to have me with him again that he agreed immediately to go to church with me each Sunday.

One evening the following year Bill went forward to the altar and committed his life to Christ. It was the beginning of a whole new life together.

Bill made the stained glass window that now stands over the baptismal font at the church. It shows rivers from both Old and New Testaments and at the top, the river of life flowing from Jesus Himself, from whom we now know that all true life really comes.

Inflation is changing

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — It all shows up in the pocketbook or the checkbook anyway, so it probably doesn't make much difference, but the nature—and maybe even the degree—of inflation is changing.

If the change continues it will deprive the Nixon administration of a favorite defense: that inflation is concentrated in food and energy and other prices are responding to restraints.

No longer is that completely true. There are indications energy inflation might top out. And farm prices, which usually are quickly reflected in retail prices, actually have fallen.

After rising for three straight months, prices received at the farm in March dropped 3.8 per cent. There were sharp drops in livestock, grains, eggs, fruits and vegetables. Processed food prices also fell.

Meanwhile, wholesale industrial prices took off, led by hefty increases in metals. On an annual basis, wholesale prices rose 15.6 per cent last month, with more than a quarter of that accounted for by metals.

But the spread of inflation was far greater than that. Also higher were chemicals, wood pulp, paper, plastic products, tires, concrete items, manmade fibers, textile products, appliances, furniture . . .

The list of increases was long and inclusive, affecting even the prices of toys and jewelry. Few areas of the economy now are free of the cancer cells of inflation.

The latest evidence on prices not only undercuts the old alibi that prices were stabilizing, but underscores five years of futility in bringing inflation under control.

Latest evidence that the economic downturn and possible recession might be less damaging than had been anticipated comes from the latest jobless figures which show unemployment remaining just over 5 per cent.

The March figure actually dropped, from 5.2 per cent in February to 5.1 per cent, to the surprise of many business and academic forecasters who had projected rates of between 6 and 8 per cent.

In fairness, most of those jobless rates were forecast when the energy shortage seemed far worse than it turned out to be. Some economists maintain they shouldn't be blamed for their inability to understand the political climate, which they say accounts for their error.

In the minds of some businessmen, the most serious imbalance in the economy is neither inflation nor unemployment, but rising interest rates. Continued increases, they fear, will stagnate the economy.

Two schools of thought are at war over those rates. One school, led by the Federal Reserve Board, insists that money must be restricted in order to combat inflation, even if interest rates rise sharply.

An opposition school argues the economy has received enough damage already from inflation and other factors and must be spurred to renewed activity by having access to money at moderate interest rates.

Kuhn forces Hank into Sunday lineup

ATLANTA (AP) — Henry Aaron, taking in stride the controversy surrounding his quest for baseball immortality, returns to his home park tonight where playing orders from Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn won't be needed.

"Yeah, that's definite I'm going to play tomorrow," the 40-year-old Atlanta Braves' slugger said Sunday at the end of a stormy five-day stay in Cincinnati.

Aaron renews his bid to become the game's all-time home run king in Atlanta Stadium tonight in the Braves' home opener of 1974—against the Los Angeles Dodgers and left-handed pitcher Al Downing.

The soft-spoken star, playing under a direct order from Kuhn, went hitless in three trips Sunday in Atlanta's 5-3 victory over Cincinnati, leaving him tied with the legendary Babe Ruth at 714 lifetime home runs.

A sellout crowd of 52,870 and a massive national television (NBC) audience is expected to watch the game and a special 30-minute program in tribute to Aaron.

"We obeyed the commissioner," Aaron told a swarm of sports writers in the Brave clubhouse at Cincinnati Sunday. "I hope everybody's happy. Yes, I'm happy."

"I just hope tomorrow night it all will be over with and things can get back to normal," he said. "It's been quite a week here."

Aaron was called out on strikes in his first two appearances Sunday and then grounded out to third before leaving the game in the middle of the seventh inning.

Spurred by the prolonged controversy over his playing status, Aaron was asked if he had tried to hit a home run.

"I played the game and did the best I could," he said. "It's not easy to walk up there and hit one out. I felt good but I wasn't guessing right. I was looking for a fast ball and he (pitcher Clay Kirby) threw me all sliders."

The turmoil, which began before spring training when the Braves announced Aaron would not play in Cincinnati, built to the boiling point Saturday after Manager Eddie Mathews announced Aaron would sit out the final two games of the series.

Aaron watched Saturday's nationally televised game from the dugout. The Reds beat the Braves 7-5. Afterward came word that Kuhn wished to talk with Mathews.

"We received a message from the commissioner," said an obviously weary Mathews said in a prepared statement, that there would be serious consequences if Aaron didn't start on Sunday.

So, Mathews said he would start Aaron on Sunday.

Aaron steadfastly has refused to be drawn into the controversy personally.

At his own request, he wasn't present at the Saturday night news conference attended by Mathews, Board Chairman Bill Bartholomay and General Manager Eddie Robinson.

Before Sunday's game, Aaron said: "I think there is too much fuss over it. I believe the Braves had the right to promote the only thing going for them right now. But I don't want to get involved in the commissioner's decision."

After complying with the order, the aging superstar felt the controversy should be ended.

Mathews said he made the decision that triggered Kuhn's reaction because Aaron had given Cincinnati fans a thrill with his record-equalling 714th home run on opening day and that "Atlanta fans deserve 715."

"I have disagreed from the start that the commissioner should have become involved in this matter," Bartholomay said. "But under the major league rules, we have no further appeal."

Kuhn has been unavailable for comment since Saturday night. One of his aides said Sunday he was visiting in-laws in upstate New York.

Kuhn was scheduled to attend tonight's game in Atlanta, but the aide indicated he may change his mind, making his final decision sometime today.

Meanwhile, Cincinnati's Kirby has gotten off the spot and put Los Angeles' Downing on it.

Kirby admitted he was nervous when the game got underway. "But I was more worried about all those lefties in the lineup." One of them, Darrell Evans, hit a three-run homer in the third inning to spark the Atlanta triumph, following losses in Cincinnati Thursday and Saturday.

Downing, 9-9 last year, was asked about facing Aaron tonight.

"Maybe Bowie will order him not to play, that he'll have to rest after a travel day," Downing joked.

Then, getting serious, he said, "...I'm also aware of what I have to do. I'm certainly not going to walk him, not going to throw four balls over his head. Anyway, it's his moment, not mine."

For it's one...

Aaron again let a called third strike go by (middle picture) in the third inning. He ended the day grounding out in the fifth (bottom picture). Aaron, who tied Babe Ruth's career home run record Thursday, was scheduled to start Monday night as the Braves return home for an 11-day stand. (UPI)

Greensboro golf title to Charles

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Bob Charles, once again a winner on the American tour, is busily rearranging his schedule.

"I'll have to change things around a bit," the slender, graying veteran from New Zealand said Sunday after his victory—his first since 1967 in the United States—in the Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"I'll now make two more trips to the United States this year," he said. "I'll definitely play in 15 tournaments. I'll definitely play enough to keep my card."

He hadn't planned on that. He'd planned to surrender his playing privileges in the United States until his final-round three-under-par 68 stood off a half-dozen challenges and won him the $44,966 first prize in this tournament.

Charles, a 38-year-old former British Open champion who abandoned the American tour a year ago, finished with a 270 total, 14 under par on the 7,021-yard Sedgefield Country Club course.

He finished one stroke ahead of Ray Floyd and Lee Trevino, tied at 271. Floyd, who lost a share of the lead with a bogey on the final hole, had a closing 67 and Trevino, gunning for a second consecutive triumph, once took a share of the lead with three straight birdies and finished with a 66.

Charles opened the final round with a one-stroke lead, but a bogey on the second hole opened the gates. Five other players shared the lead at one time or another on the sunny day before Charles solved it all in the run down the stretch before a massive gallery of 47,253.

The left-hander birdied the 17th after a beautiful iron shot left him a five-foot putt. He holed it to go 14 under and moved past Trevino, who had finished at 13 under.

"I'd planned on playing six tournaments on this trip, then coming back for three more," he said.

Jack McKeon irked over Quilici actions

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Did Minnesota Manager Frank Quilici influence the umpires in ordering a rain delay in Sunday's American League baseball game between the Twins and the Kansas City Royals?

Royals Manager Jack McKeon thinks so.

"The game wasn't stopped until Quilici and his players walked off the field," said McKeon.

"I was out there to make a pitching change," said Quilici. "There was a mud pile on the mound. Joe Decker was sliding all over the mound. Joe wasn't able to follow through. The ball was wet."

The game was in the last of the fourth inning. The Royals had just decked Decker with a three-run upswing for a 6-1 lead. There were two outs.

Quilici stroled to the mound and ordered a new pitcher. Before reliever Dick Woodson started warming up, the umpires stopped the action. After two hours, seven minutes, the game was postponed.

Seconds after the rain delay started, McKeon charged onto the field and confronted umpires Dave Phillips and Lou DiMuro with his best high-on-the-toes, almost nose-to-nose act. The argument raged for some five or six minutes.

As usual, the umpires won.

"We didn't even know the game was called until Quilici called his players off the field," said McKeon. "It had been raining a long while. They should have stopped the game a half hour earlier if they were going to stop it."

"It makes you wonder who's running the league. It's ridiculous. I just went out there to protest to the umpire-in-chief (DiMuro) because the condition of the field was not checked before the game delay was called."

"I could have had my guys strike out in the fourth, and they'd have played the top of the fifth, and it would have been an official game but I don't play that way."

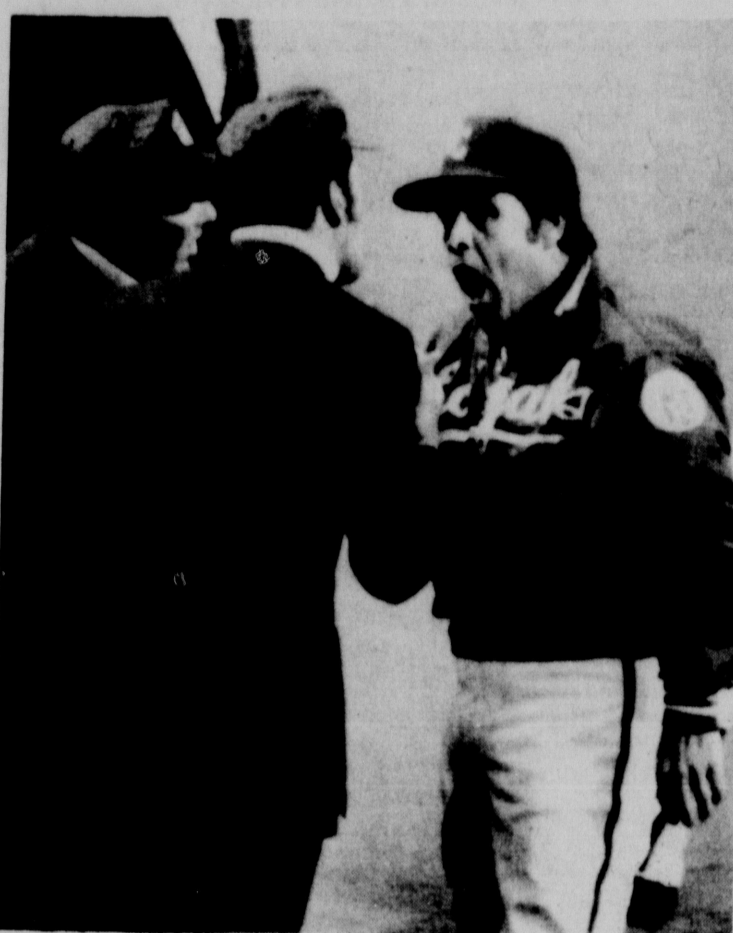

McKeon said he had lodged a protest of the game with DiMuro.

"It's just one of those things," said Quilici of McKeon's action and the rain. "Jack was complaining about the same thing I would have complained about if I was winning."

The Royals had taken a 3-0 lead in the second inning. The Twins picked up their only run off Marty Pattin in the fourth.

A bearded, acrobatic streaker enlivened things during the long delay, bursting from his third row seat behind the Royals' dugout and streaking all the way to the center field fence. He did a few flip-flops en route and dived into the water puddles on the way back.

The streaker put on a pretty good show before he returned to his seat, slipped on his trousers and was arrested. At that, he was a rather timid soul, waiting two hours after the delay started to try to upstage McKeon.

Imhoff says pro athletes not worth their salaries

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — "Pro basketball players are the highest paid athletes in the world," says Darrall Imhoff, who retired from the sport two years ago. "But I'll say at the outset, we're not worth it."

Imhoff spent 12 years in the National Basketball Association and now is a businessman in Portland, where he finished his NBA career. He spoke Sunday at a special conference on the role of sports in society.

"We're so overpaid it's ridiculous," Imhoff said, adding it wasn't that way when he joined the NBA and received a starting salary of about $12,000 a year.

Competitive bidding between professional leagues drives the price up, which is why some players now get $2 million or $3 million to sign a contract, he said.

"But people who make a lot of money aren't satisfied with life," he said. "It doesn't buy happiness. I know. I've been in the locker rooms with these men. You haven't."

Jackson homers twice, knocks in 7 rbi

By FRANK BROWN
AP Sports Writer

Reggie Jackson won't be able to hit in Texas again until August 6.

But if the Oakland A's could play there all the time and add one Rangers' player to their lineup, Jackson says the American League West title would nearly be wrapped up by then.

The outspoken A's outfielder bid a fond farewell to Arlington Stadium with his second and third home runs of the season and seven runs batted in Oakland's 8-4 triumph over the Rangers.

He finished the American League baseball season's opening series with seven hits in 13 at bats, eight runs batted in, two doubles and a .538 batting average.

Jackson could well have added to those impressive statistics had Ferguson Jenkins not one-hit the A's Saturday night.

"If we had him on our staff," said Jackson, "we could all go home by Aug. 15."

In other American League games Sunday, the California Angels and Chicago White Sox were tied 4-4 after 10 innings when snow postponed their contest; the New York Yankees bombed the Cleveland Indians 7-1; the Baltimore Orioles and Detroit Tigers split a doubleheader—the Orioles won the opener 5-1 and the Tigers took the second 8-4 in 10 innings.

The Boston Red Sox at Milwaukee Brewers game was rained out, as was the Minnesota Twins-Kansas City Royals contest.

"I've never had a start like this before—ever," said Jackson, the Most Valuable Player during the 1973 regular season and World Series. "Normally, I get off slow."

Angels 4, White Sox 4

Snow began falling during the eighth inning and led to the postponement of the California-Chicago game after 10 innings of play. The entire game will be replayed at a date to be determined, but all records of Sunday's contest will be counted toward the final statistics.

The Angels had a 4-1 lead after seven innings, but Chicago scored twice in the eighth and tied it in the ninth on Ken Henderson's double and Carlos May's single.

The White Sox might have won the game in the ninth, but a perfect throw from Joe LaHoud cut down Bill Melton at the plate.

Yankees 7, Indians 1

Pat Dobson pitched a five-hitter and Thurman Munson homered to spark the Yankees' triumph over the Indians.

Dobson surrendered the Cleveland run before he got anyone out in the first inning, but allowed just three hits the rest of the way.

Roy White tripled and scored on an infield out, then Munson homered to put New York in front for good.

The Yanks added a run in the third, made it 4-1 in the fifth, and added three runs in the eighth—two on Jim Mason's single.

Orioles 5-4, Tigers 1-8

Ron Cash slapped the 10th inning which broke a 4-4 tie and Ed Brinkman added a two-run single later in the inning to help Detroit defeat the Orioles in the second game of the doubleheader.

Milwaukee eliminates LA Lakers

By BERT ROSENTHAL
AP Sports Writer

"I felt they knew the game was over early," said Milwaukee's Jon McGlocklin after the Bucks walloped Los Angeles 114-92 and eliminated the Lakers from the National Basketball Association playoffs.

It was a sad and somber observation about the once-powerful Lakers, who only last season had reached the final series before losing to the New York Knicks in five games.

Their loss to the Bucks Sunday night at Milwaukee made them the first team to be ousted from the playoffs this season, losing the scheduled best-of-seven Western Conference series 4-1. The victory moved the Bucks into the West final against the winner of the Chicago-Detroit series, tied at 2-2 following the Pistons' 102-87 triumph Sunday night.

In the other NBA playoff game Sunday, the New York Knicks edged the Capital Bullets 106-105 for a 3-2 lead in their Eastern Conference semifinal series.

The other East series, between the Boston Celtics and Buffalo Braves, tied at 2-2, resumes Tuesday night at Boston.

In the only ABA playoff game Sunday, the New York Nets trounced the Virginia Squires 116-88 for a 3-1 lead in their East Division semifinal.

The Kentucky Colonels, leading Carolina 3-0 in the other ABA East pairing, can clinch the series tonight with a victory over the beleaguered Cougars at Lexington, Ky. In the West, the Utah Stars, leading the Conquistadors 3-2, can advance to the final with a triumph at San Diego tonight, and the Indiana Pacers, with a 3-2 advantage over the Spurs, can end their series in San Antonio Wednesday night.

WHA Playoffs

Whalers grab 2-0 lead

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If ever a man was in the right place at the right time, it was the New England Whaler's John Frazier.

"I was trying to set up a screen and I thought Mike Byers was going to move in for a closer shot," recalled French after the Whalers had scored a 4-3 overtime victory over the Chicago Cougars Sunday in their World Hockey Association Eastern Division playoff series.

"However, he let it go from the top of the faceoff circle and the puck simply struck my skate and bounced in for the game winner."

"I didn't have much to do with tonight's game winner, but I'll be happy to take it."

The victory gave the Whalers a 2-0 edge in the best-of-seven series.

In other Sunday WHA playoff action, the Minnesota Fighting Saints downed the Edmonton Oilers 8-5 and the Toronto Toros blanked the Cleveland Crusaders 4-0.

Toros 4, Crusaders 0

Rookie Wayne Dillon returned to Toronto and scored two goals, backing up shutout goaltending from Gilles Gratton.

"I guess that subconsciously, sitting in my old seat in my old dressing room, helped get me up for the game," said Dillon who played junior hockey in Maple Leaf Gardens last year for the Toronto Marlboros.

Gavin Kirk and Guy Trotter collected Toronto's other goals, while Gratton had 29 saves.

Rain hits I-70

Speedway opener

ODESSA — Sunday's season opener at I-70 Speedway near here was rained out.

A large field of late model stock cars, including defending race champion Don Conner, Shawnee Mission, Kan., and the nation's winningest driver in 1972 Dick Trickle, stood by while the rain peppered down on the half-mile asphalt speedway.

The twin, 100-lap features, which will see the drivers vying for $10,000 program was rescheduled for April 21.

The second game of the series will be in Toronto Tuesday night.

Fighting Saints 8, Oilers 5

The Saints took an early 3-0 lead and forced Edmonton to abandon their preferred brand of hard-hitting position hockey.

Saints defenseman John Arbour scored two goals as Minnesota took a 2-0 lead in their playoff series.

Arbour's goal only ten seconds into the final period built the score to 6-1 before Edmonton gained ground in a loosely played finish.

Downing draws call against Hank Aaron

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

Al Downing of Los Angeles must have only one thought tumbling around in his brain: Getting past Bad Henry.

Tonight, in front of thousands of frenzied fans in Atlanta and millions more stationed in front of television sets across the nation, Downing and the Dodgers will have that goal in mind.

Henry Aaron was bad, indeed, on Sunday, striking out twice like any mortal baseball player and grounding out meekly in his only other at-bat.

Perhaps Clay Kirby's pitches were that good—or perhaps Aaron was just succumbing to the pressure of being forced to start for Atlanta Sunday against the Cincinnati Reds, a game won 5-3 by the Braves on Darrell Evans' three-run homer.

In Sunday's other National League games, the New York Mets pounded Philadelphia 9-2, San Francisco belted Houston 8-4 and Los Angeles walloped San Diego 9-2. Snow kayoed the Chicago Cubs' doubleheader at Montreal and rain postponed Pittsburgh's game at St. Louis.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn issued the order that Aaron start on Sunday. Kuhn had "suggested" that Aaron start in Thursday's season opener and Aaron's first swing became homer No. 714, tying Babe Ruth's career record. He sat out Saturday and was going to do the same Sunday, just to make sure he didn't rob Atlanta fans of No. 715 as well.

Then Kuhn made his own ground rules, ordering Brave Manager Eddie Mathews to include Hank's name on his lineup card.

"I don't want to get involved," the soft-spoken slugger said.

Downing, commenting on all the ballyhoo which will accompany every Aaron appearance at the plate, said: "I don't think any pitcher can disregard the surroundings. I'll be aware of it. I'll probably even be thrilled by it. But I'm also aware of what I have to do."

Kirby, an off-season acquisition from San Diego making his debut with the Reds, felt exactly the same way Sunday.

"I just said to myself, 'Gotta get him out,'" and he did, avoiding the notoriety which would have made him "an instant star for doing something bad...I just happened to make good pitches to him." Then he added, almost ominously: "He gonna hit it—No. 715—and pretty quick."

Maybe too quick for Al Downing's taste.

Mets 9, Phils 2

Jerry Grote hit a tie-breaking single in a fourth-run eighth inning, then clubbed a three-run homer in a five-run ninth which enabled New York to bury Philadelphia.

But even more satisfying than the 16-hit assault against Jim Lonborg and three relievers was Tug McGraw's about-face for the Mets.

On Saturday, in relief of Tom Seaver, he threw a game-winning home run ball to Mike Schmidt. On Sunday, replacing Jon Matlack, he struck out powerful Greg Luzinski, who represented the tying run.

Giants 8, Astros 4

San Francisco's sluggers flexed their muscles again. Gary Matthews hit a run-scoring triple and Dave Kingman followed with a three-run homer in the first inning and Bobby Bonds belted a two-run double in the third to power San Francisco past Houston.

Quincy runner wins marathon

CANTON, Mo. (AP) — David Nye of Quincy, Ill., won the Gary Lee Brown Memorial marathon with time to spare Saturday as he ran the 26-mile course in 2 hours, 29 minutes and 15 seconds — 15 minutes ahead of his nearest competitor.

Taking second place in the event, sponsored by Culver-Stockton College, was Mel Stetson, of Rock Island, Ill., a student at Western Illinois University.

Finishing third among the 157 entries, which included 40 women, was 13-year-old Jeff Schuman of Canton, who turned in a time of 2:47:14.

Another Canton youngster, 16-year-old Joann Crandall, placed seventh among the 69 finishers.

Big Eight baseball

Mizzou Tigers face possible elimination

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Oklahoma, undefeated in six league tests, can just about knock Missouri out of the Big Eight Conference baseball race if the Sooners can sweep three games from the Tigers at Missouri Friday and Saturday.

The Sooners won all three games from Nebraska over the weekend, climaxing the series with an 8-3 triumph Saturday and dumping the Cornhuskers into the basement. Oklahoma is 6-0 and Nebraska 0-6.

Oklahoma State, after winning two of three games from Missouri, goes to Kansas, and Kansas State, tied with O-State for second with a 5-1 record, plays at home the coming weekend against Colorado.

In the other two-day, triple bill, Nebraska against Colorado.

In the other two-day, triple bill, Nebraska invades Iowa State.

Saturday's action, in addition to the Sooners' victory, saw Oklahoma State beat Missouri 9-6.

Kansas and Kansas State take turns winning by identical scores of 4-3 and Iowa State whip Colorado twice 5-2 and 3-2, the second contest in 11 innings. Colorado turned things around Sunday and beat the Cyclones 9-8.

The weekend activity left Missouri in fourth with a 4-2 mark, Iowa State 2-4 and Colorado and Kansas each 1-5.

Mickey Lashley of Oklahoma ran his record to 5-0 against Nebraska, holding the Huskers to four hits and one earned run and striking out 10. Keith Drumright had a double and two singles for the Sooners. Dave Buehrer was the loser and is 0-3.

Five unearned runs in the seventh inning gave Oklahoma State its Saturday victory over Missouri. Dan Massari slammed a two-run homer for the victorious Cowboys, who were out 11-8.

Roger Slagle went the distance for the Jayhawks in the first game against K-State, yielding five hits. Kansas pushed over the winning run in the final inning on Gary Noske's single.

The Wildcats capitalized on shortstop John Turner's error for three runs, two of them unearned, in the second inning of the nightcap. Andy Replogle's relief pitching featured the Wildcat triumph.

Colorado gained its Sunday victory over the Cyclones by taking advantage of three errors and scoring three times in the eighth on singles by Jay Sferra and Dave Engels and a walk.

This week's schedule:

Tuesday — Drake at Iowa State 2, Missouri Western at Kansas State 2, Air Force at Colorado 2, Ottawa University at Kansas 2, Central Missouri at Missouri 2, Northwest Missouri at Nebraska 2, Southern California at Oklahoma, Southern California vs. Oklahoma at Oklahoma City.

Wednesday — Oklahoma Baptist at Oklahoma State 2.

Oswald: "East's three diamonds bid was made to suggest a lead. If North had doubled East would have run to four clubs, a contract that would only be set one trick if West played correctly. North didn't bother to double and the spade game was reached."

Jim: "This hand is given as an example of how an alert declarer bases his play on knowledge of his opponents' bidding methods. The defense started with the ace of diamonds, a diamond ruff and the king of clubs lead. South took dummy's ace; drew trumps with two leads and discarded his last club and a heart on dummy's good diamonds. Then he ruffed dummy's last club and studied the heart suit."

Oswald: "Playing bridge in a vacuum, South would cash dummy's ace of hearts and lead a heart toward his queen. This play would work if East held the king of hearts or West held the doubleton king. In this latter case he would have to give South a ruff and a discard."

Jim: "It would also have failed miserably this time and South was sure that it would. West's two club overcall had marked him with the king of hearts. If he only held two hearts he would have held an eight-card club suit. So South entered dummy with a trump; led a low heart; stuck in his nine after East followed and poor West was end-played."

Repeal of law allowing government monitoring of some doctor care sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of organized medicine's best friends in Congress are pressing for repeal of a 1972 law that allows government monitoring of some doctor care — and prodding the American Medical Association to join them in the fight.

Twenty-five members of Congress who have received a total of $143,000 in recent campaign contributions from organized medicine are sponsoring repeal moves.

But on this issue there is a reverse twist: The recipients of campaigns contributions, not the donors, originated the repeal move.

One senator said organized medicine was asleep when the legislation passed. A House member said organized medicine apparently concluded that it would not be possible to get the law undone, and therefore hasn't been trying.

The situation points up a simple political fact: Political contributions flow from organizations or individuals to candidates who share like views, and philosophy, not pressure, tends to lead the candidate to the cause of his supporters.

Although the American Medical Association house of delegates favors repeal, the association has been cooperating reluctantly in implementing the doctor care-monitoring law.

Congressional advocates of repeal say they now expect the organization, or its subordinate state medical societies, to resist. A few state societies now have passed resolutions vowing resistance.

"No one prompted me to sponsor this legislation," said Sen. Carl Curtis, R-Neb. "I opposed this from the start. It is not peer review, but government review. Doctors slept through the debate."

The 23 representatives and 2 senators are listed in public records as getting contributions ranging from $210 to $18,500 over the past two years.

For some, organized medicine was the largest single campaign donor in 1972. Six got contributions in 1973 when they were not involved in an election.

Most of the money came from AMA state political committees, which use national funds but also raise their own.

And it is from the state and local level that the sponsors of repeal legislation have been hearing.

Interviews with many of the 25 members of Congress indicate that they maintain close ties with organized medicine.

"I have even called the AMA for guidance when I haven't heard from them on an issue," said Robert Bauman, R-Md., who got $1,000 from the Maryland-Medical Political Action Committee in his special election last year.

"I am supported by people who philosophically feel the same way I do," said Rep. William Hudnut III, R-Ind., who got $18,500 from the Indiana MPAC in 1972.

Hudnut, Bauman and the others are sponsoring repeal of the 1972 legislation which was an amendment to a Social Security bill.

The measure requires the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to set minimum standards for care, both its necessity and quality, under medicare and medicaid.

Supporters argued the bill would help expose and curb doctors seeking to get rich off government programs.

Opponents say it is a step toward socialized medicine and infringes on the doctor-patient confidentiality by allowing bureaucrats to inspect medical records.

"The Ellsberg break-in wouldn't have been necessary with this," said Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ill. "They could have gotten some HEW bureaucrat to just walk right in."

Crane is a leading spokesman for repeal, but has not received recent campaign contributions. He said he has had such support in the past.

"The leadership of the AMA and the AMA lobby here had reached the conclusion you couldn't get this repealed," said Crane, who urged the organization to make a fight when he addressed its convention in Anaheim, Calif. last December. The AMA House of Delegates approved a resolution at that meeting urging repeal. Crane said he believes the association will join the fight in earnest.

"The states are gearing up now," he said.

"We do not ask anybody we support, as a condition of our support, that he take a position on any piece of legislation," said David Baldwin, an official in the AMA's Washington office.

"We simply ask that people who receive our support pay attention to our arguments and then vote as they see fit," he said.

Rep. Bauman said repeal of the 1972 law first was suggested to him by "AMA political action people in my district" during his campaign last year.

"They mentioned it in passing," he said. "There was no real pressure. I am against a computerized approach to treatment. I object on principle to this intrusion on doctor-patient relations."

No 'if' about it

The United States' ongoing shift to the metric system is not "metrification." It's "metrication" because, as one General Motors engineer put it, "there's no 'if' about it." GM is designing all its new products, including the rotary engine shown here, to metric measurements and is encouraging affected employees to "think metric." (UPI)

Music fans found some problems

ONTARIO, Calif. (AP) — Some 200,000 music fans thronged to the "California Jam" rock festival during the weekend for a concert that police said "went off very well."

For the promoters, ABC Entertainment, the extravaganza may gross more money than any other concert of its kind.

Similar events at Woodstock in 1969 and Watkins Glen last year, both in New York, drew larger crowds. However, gate-crashing at Ontario Motor Speedway wasn't as much of a problem as it had been elsewhere, authorities said.

At $10 a ticket, the advance price paid by more than 167,000 concert-goers, and $15 paid at the gate by the rest, "California Jam" should gross about $2 million. The previous box office record was $1.5 million grossed by promoters of the Watkins Glen festival.

Spokesmen for ABC Entertainment deferred comment on the financial success until later in the week.

Meanwhile today, police in this city 40 miles east of Los Angeles said they were still trying to match up the last of the young concert-goers with parents and the older fans with their automobiles.

The concert started Saturday morning and waited on into the night, but when it finally ended hundreds of fans found they couldn't leave. Their cars, parked illegally on the shoulder of Interstate 10 leading to the speedway, had been towed away.

The preconcert traffic jam — a monumental one stretching 13 miles at one point — was the biggest problem of the event, which was generally peaceful.

'Essential' hypertension study results released

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — New studies on rats suggest a possible lead toward prevention and cure of "essential" hypertension, the most puzzling and by far the commonest form of high blood pressure.

Hypertension constitutes one of the nation's major health problems because it can lead to fatal heart disease and cerebral strokes.

"Essential" hypertension means high blood pressure of unknown cause. It is distinguished from high blood pressure arising from certain other conditions, such as kidney disease. About 19 million of the 23 million Americans who suffer from hypertension are afflicted with the "essential" type.

The prevailing theory points to changes in the automatic nervous system and certain glandular systems as the causes of "essential" hypertension.

But two researchers say their studies with four types of hypertensive rats indicate that "essential" hypertension may be caused instead by a metabolic defect in the smooth muscle of blood vessel walls.

M. Sarmir Amer and Gordon R. McKinney revealed the results of their studies today at the 58th annual meeting of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology.

The two said their work at the Mead-Johnson laboratories in Evansville, Ind., indicated the suspected biochemical blood vessel defect could lead to a whole new approach to treatment of high blood pressure. Doctors could prescribe drugs for treating the blood vessel defect rather than simply for lowering the blood pressure, they said.

Three persons die in weekend mishaps

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Three lives were lost over the weekend on Missouri highways.

Killed in separate accidents Sunday were Charline Hollier, 47, Hazelhurst, Miss., and Clarence H. Rongey, 57, Granite City, Ill.

The Hollier woman died when a truck in which she was riding went off U.S. 60 just west of Cairo, Ill., overturning down an embankment.

Rongey died in a fiery one-car crash near Salem.

Herbert Hoeller, 17, Westphalia, Mo., was killed Saturday when his truck smashed into a tree near his hometown.

Ray's attorney gives deposition on motion

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Attorney Percy Foreman has told the Tennessee Attorney General's office that the convicted assassin of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., said he deliberately left fingerprints on the rifle used in the killing. The Tennessean reported Monday.

The morning newspaper said Foreman quoted his former client, James Earl Ray, as saying he wanted the FBI to find his fingerprints on the weapon used to kill the civil rights leader. The newspaper quoted statements from a deposition Foreman gave to the attorney general's office last week.

"Ray laughed at the FBI for failing to find more fingerprints than they did," Foreman was quoted as saying. "Ray said he put his prints all over the rifle, then wrapped it in a blanket to insure the prints would not be obliterated."

Foreman, of Houston, Tex., represented Ray when he pleaded guilty to King's murder in March 1969.

Foreman's deposition was made in connection with a petition filed by Ray seeking a new trial.

Ray contends that Foreman misrepresented him and forced him to plead guilty.

In January, the U.S. Sixth Circuit Court of Appeals ordered a hearing into Ray's petition; however, Asst. State Atty. Gen. W. Henry Haile said the state will ask the U.S. Supreme Court to review the case.

The Tennessean said Foreman testified for more than six hours last Wednesday. He was examined by Haile ten cross-examined by Ray's current attorneys Bernard Fensterwald and James Lesar of Washington and Robert Livingston of Memphis.

In a telephone interview Sunday night, Foreman declined to discuss the deposition.

"The restrictions placed upon me as an attorney prevent me from talking about it."

"The only reason I pleaded Ray guilty," he said, "was the overwhelming evidence that the prosecution had developed that could not be controverted. I pleaded him guilty to save his life."

Ray is serving his 99-year sentence in the Tennessee State Prison.

King was gunned down while standing on a motel balcony in Memphis April 4, 1968. He was in Memphis to support a garbage strike.

People in the news

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has urged Roman Catholic youth to abandon fashionable forms of protest and, instead, support "some militant organization in the fields of action, piety or charity."

The pontiff, in a Palm Sunday rite in St. Peter's Basilica, also urged Catholic youth "not to be ashamed and run away when showing ourselves to be Christian makes others despise us."

The 76-year-old Pope spoke in a firm voice from his papal throne and looked well after two bouts of illness last month.

After the ceremony in the basilica, the Pope went to his apartment in the Vatican's Apostolic Palace and from a window blessed a crowd of 30,000 gathered in St. Peter's Square.

BONN, Germany (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, here on a two-day visit, held discussions with West German Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Details of the Sunday meeting were not revealed. The Massachusetts Democrat was invited by the Bonn Society for Foreign Politics to speak on U.S.-German relations today.

CARLSBAD, Calif. (AP) — Lt. Gov. Edward Reinecke, indicted by a Watergate grand jury, was greeted with sympathy, support and applause during a weekend campaign push for governor.

Reinecke's 30-hour campaign tour took him more than 1,000 miles to seven cities and he drew support from his conservative Republican supporters at each stop.

Reinecke was indicted in connection with his April 19, 1972, testimony before the U.S. Senate Judiciary Committee, which asked him about a $400,000 offer from the International Telephone and Telegraph Corp. to help underwrite costs of the 1972 Republican National Convention.

"Certainly I'm concerned," Reinecke said about the indictment. "But I still have enough faith in the system to believe I'm going to get a fair trial if it's moved to California."

He said the atmosphere in Washington means he probably couldn't get a fair trial there.

'Unusual' auto sales are probed

ST. LOUIS (AP)—What the Federal Bureau of Investigation described as "the unusual sale" of a 1971 Cadillac for $100 has led to both state and city investigations of auto sales by the St. Louis Towing Co.

Missouri Director of Revenue James Spradling said Saturday his office was investigating reported unusually low-priced sales of cars towed from city streets by the firm.

And city police board president Theodore D. McNeal said police had also taken action to "straighten this out."

Under investigation are sales of unclaimed towed vehicles by the company to Jay's Auto Parts, which is owned by the same person, Jasper Cillo. St. Louis Towing is under contract to the city to remove derelict and illegally parked from city streets. The company pays the city $7.55 per vehicle.

"When they actually sell articles at a ridiculously low price to another company owned by the same individual, it is cause for suspicion," McNeal said. Spradling said his office has discovered that "numerous automobiles" have been purchased by Jay's Auto Parts for prices as low as $1.

He added that Missouri was losing out on the proper amount of sales tax on the low-priced sales when Cillo retitled the cars in his name.

Food price hikes over 20 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — New government figures today show it cost a family of four at least $43.10 per week to eat in February even if it scrimped on meat and served plenty of beans and potatoes. The figure was $8.10 higher than a year ago.

The increase was for a so-called low-cost food budget compiled by the Agriculture Department. Although its cost went up 23 per cent from February 1973, other plans for more affluent families rose proportionately less.

A moderate-cost budget would have cost $54.80 per week in February, up $9.60 or 21 per cent from a year earlier. And a liberal plan used by USDA was $66.60 per week, a gain of $11.20 or 20 per cent from February 1973.

Five day clinic helped smoker stop

Dear Ann Landers: You have printed several letters in your column about smokers, how they hate the habit and wish they could get unhooked, but never have you printed a letter with a solution. This may be your first.

I started to smoke when I was 17. I was on my own in the business world and thought if I smoked I'd look older. For a few years it was eight or ten cigarettes a day, usually when I was with someone I wanted to impress. Gradually I realized I was smoking more than I had intended. I found myself lighting a cigarette every time I had a cup of coffee, or whenever I reached for a telephone. By the time I was 21, I was hooked.

I coughed, hacked, and burned holes in my best suits. I even burned a hole in the dining room table. I must say my wife was wonderful. She never nagged me to quit because she was smart enough to know that each person must make that decision himself.

Last November some friends from Reno came to spend the weekend. Edna mentioned something about an acquaintance who had been a nicotine freak for 38 years, how she had gone to a clinic in California, checked in on Sunday and left the following Friday — total cost, $375. Edna said the woman was a chain-smoker, thoroughly addicted, but five days at "that place" produced the miracle. I sent for the literature at once.

On December 2, I left for St. Helena's Hospital and Health Center. When I arrived at the gate I was smoking. Then I saw a sign. "You are entering a non-smoking area. Deposit smoking materials here." I put out my cigarette and tossed it (along with the rest of the pack) into the trash can provided for that purpose.

The next five days were rough, but they were fascinating, too. I met men and women from all over the country. We exercised vigorously, ate vegetarian meals, drank countless glasses of fruit juices (no liquor allowed), listened to lectures, watched films, and took steam and sauna baths to ease the withdrawal symptoms. Then there was "Frank," that horrible-looking, cancer-ridden lung floating in a bottle of alcohol. He managed to turn up in the dining room, the lecture hall, wherever I happened to be.

Although St. Helen's is run by the Seventh Day Adventists, no one tried to sell us religion. I was impressed by the dedication and the quiet dignity of the personnel. They truly believe in what they are doing but they apply no pressure to persuade the guests that theirs is the only way.

On Friday, December 7, I walked out of St. Helena's feeling very good about myself. "Keep in touch," said Dr. Herschel Lamp, the director. "We want to know how you get along."

From that day to this I haven't had a cigarette. Easy? Of course not! There are times when the craving is so strong I must excuse myself from a meeting and go wash my face with cold water. (They taught us to do this during moments of crisis.) But I have kicked the habit. Honey, and if I can do it, anyone can.

Please print this letter and tell the tobacco junkies who want to quit where to write for information. Thank you. — Free At Last

Dear Free: The address is: St. Helena's Hospital and Health Center, Deer Park, California 94576. All I can say is God bless THEM and thank you for writing.

Follicles determine amount of hair

Dear Dr. Lamb — Please settle a disagreement between my friend and me. I say that if a person shaves or removes hair with a depilatory then the hair doesn't grow back in a greater amount or darker in color. I think that it only looks darker because it hasn't been bleached by the sun yet and that is why it looks darker.

Dear Reader — The number of hairs depends entirely on the number of active hair follicles within the skin. The follicle is like the root to a blade of grass. You can cut the top off and the root will allow more grass, or hair, to grow right back.

The stub of hair is tougher, and a shaved area will give that bristle-feel to touch. If you ever walked over some cut grass stubble or stubble from a wheat field you can see how tough it is too at the base. The shaving doesn't make the hair tougher, it just leaves the tougher stubble.

Cutting off or even pulling out the hair still leaves an active follicle, and the hair will return just as it was, no darker and in no greater quantity. The only way to solve the problem is to remove the follicle. This is what electrolysis does. Using an electrical needle the hair follicle is destroyed. It usually takes several treatments to get all the hair follicles because some of them have not sprouted their next hair at the time of one procedure and can't be located. By repeated procedures, in time all the hair follicles can be destroyed, and hence no more hair.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I have thalassemia — Cooley's

Mediterranean anemia. I believe it is a form of leukemia (cancer). I am 59 years old.

I'm so tired constantly. It gets progressively worse. I know there is research going on. Is there anything at all that can relieve this terrible tired feeling. I do have so much work that needs to be done. So, constant rest is out of the question. I go around feeling so tired that at times I'm like a zombie.

Dear Reader — You may well have thalassemia, but I doubt you have Cooley's Mediterranean anemia. That particular type of anemia is usually confined to young children. Most likely you have another variant of the thalassemia type of anemias.

The thalassemias are all abnormalities in the formation of hemoglobin which is associated with varying degrees of anemia. Depending on the severity of the problem, the liver and spleen may be enlarged, and there may even be jaundice. Since you don't mention these things, I would assume you do not have that severe a form.

Probably your fatigue is related to an anemia. Your doctor would most certainly know with a simple blood test. He may be able to control your anemia with medicines. I do want to assure you that what you have is not leukemia, nor is it cancer. It is an inherited condition affecting the hemoglobin or iron-containing pigment within the red blood cells.

Opinions on abortion controversy near split

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The American public remains almost evenly divided in the abortion controversy, according to the Gallup Poll.

In the latest survey, taken last month, adults in more than 300 towns throughout the country were asked: "The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that a woman may go to a doctor to end pregnancy at any time during the first three months of pregnancy. Do you favor or oppose this ruling?"

Of 1,582 adults surveyed, 47 per cent expressed approval, while 44 per cent said they opposed it. Nine per cent had no opinion.

A similar poll in December 1972, taken before the Supreme Court ruling, showed 46 per cent in favor and 45 per cent opposed.

The polling organization said little change had occurred in the attitudes of major population groups between the surveys. In both surveys, more men than women favored abortion privileges. Catholics continued to oppose them by about two-to-one, and Protestants remained slightly in favor of them.

In the latest poll, 51 per cent of the men and 43 per cent of the women expressed approval, while 38 per cent of the men and 49 per cent of the women were opposed.

The poll found sharp differences based on education. Persons with college educations favored abortion privileges 67 per cent to 27 per cent against. Of those whose educations stopped with high school, 44 per cent approved and 48 per cent disapproved. Among those with grade school educations, 25 per cent approved and 57 per cent disapproved.

Streiking is good exercise, according to Lois L. Lindauer, national director of the Diet Workshop. A 15-minute streak burns up 200 calories, equal to a chocolate bar or an ice cream cone.

Improved tornado warnings planned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weathermen running America's tornado warning system hope some planned improvements will help save more lives in future disasters.

For example, a new high-speed electronic system "that seeks to take full advantage of computers, modern display technology and modern communications technology" is being developed, says a top federal weather agency official.

The weathermen hope to begin deploying this in about 18 months to offices around the country so the whole system can react faster and more effectively to quickly developing weather situations such as tornadoes.

"It will be much more efficient than our present system and will enable a much quicker response" especially in cases such as the one last week when many tornadoes erupted at virtually the same time, an official said.

If such a modernized approach had been available last week, "it could have lengthened warning times five to 30 minutes — and in tornadoes, that could be important," another official said.

"Most natural disasters that kill people happen fast — you can't consume that time by inefficient methods which eat up the time for warning," he said.

The weathermen also are working toward gaining new satellites that could upgrade the experts' ability to forecast "and enable us to keep a continuous watch on developing weather," said the official.

Improvements also are being sought for the warning net-work's local-use radar system. "In what we call our local-use radar, we are using radar sets that go back to World War II. They are obsolete sets, they need replacement," the official said.

More than 300 persons died, thousands were hurt and property damage was measured in the millions of dollars as some 90 twisters tore through parts of a dozen states last week.

Robert M. White, head of the Commerce Department's National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and other top federal officials visited Kentucky, Indiana and Ohio last Friday to look at some of the damage and to talk with local weather agency officials.

Painting of nude shocks Japanese

TOKYO (AP) — A nude study "The Virgin" caused a sensation at the opening of an American artist Andrew Wyeth's first overseas exhibition.

An essay in innocence, the painting portrays one of Wyeth's nubile Finnish neighbors in Maine. But Japanese censors decided it showed too much of the subject's anatomy and allowed it to be displayed Friday only after the exhibit's catalog deleted the lower half of her figure.
